

DIFFERENT STYLES & SIZES

What's the difference between flat and fitted?

Answer: Flat table covers drape at the corners of the table and will hang down to an inch above the floor. A set of slight dimples will appear at the corners. A fitted table cover is made for a specific size table and has sewn corners like a fitted bed sheet.

What is a convertible table cover?

Answer: A convertible is a flat 6 foot or 8 foot table cover with hook and loop on each side so it can be converted to fit a 4 foot or 6 foot table. It is a flat table cover at the larger size and when converted to the smaller size it is a fitted table cover. Convertible table covers only available with polyester material.

What is a stretch fit table cover?

Answer: The polyester material stretches over the table cover to give it a snug contoured fit. The table cover has reinforced sleeves on each corner. Slip each table leg into the sleeve and pull tight. To achieve the snug contoured look, this table cover fits best on a table with legs no more than 6" from the table edge.

How are 3 sided and 4 sided table covers different?

Answer: Three sided table covers reach over the table's top, front and two sides leaving the back of the table exposed. This allows for storing items under the table with easy access or for sitting behind. The four sided cover reaches over the back of the table in addition to the top and sides.

How are round table covers measured?

Answer: All of our round table covers are 92 inches in diameter, without any seams. The drop on the side of the table is determined by the diameter of the table top. A 3 foot (36" diameter) top will have a 28" side drop – about 1" off the floor. A 4 foot (48" diameter) top will have a 22" side drop – about  $\frac{3}{4}$  of the way to the floor. A 5 foot (60" diameter) top will have a 16" side drop – about half way to the floor. You will need to know the size of the tables at your event before placing your order.
